VACUUM PRESSES

Hot Glass Press

The top panel of this vacuum press is made of two sheets of toughened glass. The inner surface of the lower sheet has an invisible conductive film embedded into it. A controlled electric current is passed through this film creating a highly efficient heating system. A sensor on the glass monitor controls the temperature through a digital thermostat. The transparent top panel offers a high level of operator confidence as work can be viewed throughout the bonding process. The glass is extremely smooth and highly resistant to scratching. All models include an automatic electronic cycle controller with a manual override, together with a vacuum pressure control.
